Auto Law Is Held Legal

That A. H. Dondero must pay his fine of fifteen dollars and costs imposed on him by the District Magistrate for exceeding the speed limit is the decision of the Supreme Court handed down this morning. The argument was heard before Chief Justice Robertson, Justice De Bolt and Circuit Judge Robinson, who took the place of Justice Perry, and the decision is written by Justice De Bolt.

The decision not only holds good in the case against Dondero, but for the general legality of the county ordinance, which was attacked on technical grounds by Thompson, Wilder, Watson & Lymer, attorneys for Dondero. It means that the country has the proven right to stop the auto-speeders.

The syllabus covers many important points and the decision is one of the most important that has been rendered for some time past. The argument is lengthy, covering some twenty pages of typewritten matter. Following is the syllabus:

SAME CHAUFFEUR BUT NEW CHARGE

J. E. Johnson, the chauffeur who yesterday was held to the Circuit Court to answer for the accident on the night of February 3, in which seven persons were injured, one of them seriously, was in Police Court this morning on a new charge.

He is charged with driving a car without having it registered according to law, and the police are also trying to see whether or not he had lights lit when he smashed into the express wagon and caused the accident.

Johnson was represented in Police Court today by young Attorney Lightfoot, who exchanged words with Prosecutor Brown at several stages of the proceeding. The trial was finally set for next Thursday morning.

SUGAR 473.

Ed Pollitz received two interesting cables this forenoon. The first announced that sugar had sold in New York at 4.67 cents. Within a very short time thereafter another cable announced the sale of raw sugar in New York at 4.73. It is obvious that the market for raw sugar is strong and advancing.

A strikingly pretty girl, with outstretched arms, holding aloft a large silk American flag, leaned over the side of the big Hamburg-American liner Cleveland early this morning and waved an enthusiastic greeting to a small delegation of Federal officials, newspapermen and those from the Promotion Committee who awaited the passing of the steamship at quarantine.

The arrival of a fleet of several launches at the Cleveland anchorage was the signal for hundreds of round-the-world tourists to line the rails and send a cheering welcome to the visitors.

"You never saw a finer lot of people collected on board a steamship than the Cleveland tourists numbered in the new party now starting out on a four months' cruise," was the enthusiastic rejoinder coming from Edgar Allen Forbes, newspaperman and magazine writer who is making his second trip in that vessel as a general publicity man, and representing the Hamburg-American line on this particular cruise.

Seven days' steaming from San Francisco, in leisurely manner across the Pacific made no difference to this happy delegation of travelers who are bent on having the best of times on their world-tour.

The Cleveland tourists are drawn from about every walk in life. Some there are who occupy the suites de luxe and are spending as high as seven thousand dollars on the cruise while others of more moderate means are content with smaller quarters on board and at a much less draft on their respective bank accounts. Millionaires and ministers, actors and artisans, scribers and scriptural

TENYO MARU PASSENGER IS REPORTED SUICIDE

Sanjiro Sugimoto, a Japanese cabin passenger on the liner Tenyo Maru, either leaped overboard or fell overboard from the Tenyo Maru yesterday morning as the T. K. K. liner rounded Diamond Head to make Honolulu, and went to his death without an alarm being sounded on the ship.

Yesterday afternoon, after an all-day search for the missing man, it was decided that he had committed suicide, and the death was known along the waterfront. A report of the affair was made to the Japanese consulate, and another mystery of the sea is recorded. Sugimoto was a rich and well-known cotton dealer of New York and, after living in the States for some four years, was on his way back to Japan. Whether he committed suicide in an hour of despondency or whether some other cause had temporarily unbalanced his reason will probably never be known. It was said on the ship should do so.
